The first post-secondary institution in the nation to grant undergraduate degrees to women and an early leader in the education of blacks, Oberlin holds a distinguished place among American colleges and universities. Its heritage is one of respect for the individual and active concern for the larger society.

Oberlin, which uniquely conjoins a leading Conservatory of Music with an outstanding College of Arts and Sciences, prides itself on its diverse and promising student body. Recognizing that diversity broadens perspectives, Oberlin is dedicated to recruiting a culturally, economically, geographically, and racially heterogeneous group of students. Oberlin seeks students who are intellectually talented, highly motivated, mature, and tolerant of divergent views.

Write whatever you think is important about the applicant, including a description of his or her academic and personal characteristics. We are particularly interested in evidence of the candidate's intellectual promise, motivation, relative maturity, integrity, independence, originality, initiative, leadership potential, capacity for growth, special talents, and enthusiasms. We welcome information that will help us differentiate this student from others.
