

Spiritual Opportunities Survey

Requested of all students

Please print or type.

DEADLINE: July 1, 2009

Oberlin College offers a great variety of opportunities for students to explore religious traditions and participate in spiritual life. These opportunities are coordinated through the Office of Religious and Spiritual Life (ORSL).

Oberlin has many student organizations for religious life on campus. These groups represent a wide variety of faiths and traditions (including Buddhism, Catholicism, Islam, Judaism, Paganism, Protestantism, and Unitarian Universalism), and they sponsor many meetings and services throughout the week. For information on these student groups, visit the Office of Religious and Spiritual Life web site at www.oberlin.edu/orsl.

In addition, the local area is home to many different spiritual communities, all of which welcome students.

The religious and philosophical pluralism at Oberlin College gives students great latitude to develop their own worldviews, spiritualities, and ethics. By participating in spiritual life opportunities on campus, many students establish strong friendships, find moral support, and gain perspective.

The Office of Religious and Spiritual Life uses the information on this Spiritual Opportunities Survey in developing religious life programs for the campus. If you wish, the office will also use this information to put you in contact with spiritual communities on campus and or in the community.
