I | THE ACADEMIC PROCESSION

Honorary Marshal: Kathi Simon Eastham '75

Procession Marshal: Matthew D. Lahey, Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary

Music: The Commencement Brass Ensemble

The outdoor academic procession has its antecedents in the medieval European university. The procession is designed so that each graduate passes before each faculty member one final time before the conferring of the degrees.

The modern academic gown evokes the medieval cappa clausa, a closed cloak typically worn by clerics; the modern hood, worn over the shoulders and down the back, recalls a functioning medieval head garment. In the late 19th century, the Intercollegiate Code was established for American universities, through which academic dress was standardized to convey the degree held, the field of study, and the university awarding the degree. Accordingly, there are three shapes of gown: The bachelor's gown is characterized by full, pointed sleeves; the master's gown is characterized by oblong sleeves, cut away in front to leave a streamer of the sleeve behind; the doctor's gown is faced with velvet, a likely echo of the clerical tippet, and features bell sleeves adorned with velvet bars.

Academic hoods vary in size, shape, and color; they are lined with silk in the official color or colors of the institution that granted the faculty member's highest degree. The trim color of the velvet binding indicates the discipline of the degree, commonly including: Philosophy, dark blue; Music, pink; Arts, Letters, and Humanities, white; Education, light blue; Law, purple; Medicine, green; Library Science, lemon yellow; Science, golden yellow; and Divinity, scarlet.

The gown is a symbol of the democracy of scholarship, since it covers any clothing indicating rank or status. The cap has its own traditions. The first right of a freed Roman slave was the privilege of wearing a cap, so the academic cap is the sign of the freedom of scholarship. Mortarboards have long been worn, but in recent years soft caps or tams and other colorful headgear have gained favor.

An increasingly large number of universities in America have developed unique academic gowns; most of these conform to the basic style of the Intercollegiate Code, although they replace traditional black with school colors and are often ornamented with embroidered university seals or emblems. European academic dress adds further diversity and color to the academic procession.

The audience will rise until the procession reaches the stage and is seated. The processional music will conclude with "The Star-Spangled Banner."

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

SENIOR CLASS SPEAKER

Omukoko Okoth '25

Omukoko Okoth graduates today with a degree in economics with honors, a minor in politics, and concentrations in business and mathematics.

An international student from Nairobi, Kenya, Omukoko was inspired early on at Oberlin to build community through meaningful change. He served as a resident assistant, a student senator, and a facilitator of Barefoot Dialogue groups. A dedicated student leader, he was also involved in the Entrepreneurial Club, the National Society of Leadership and Success, the African Student Association, the Finance Club, the Soccer Club, and the Dean of Students Student Advisory Board. Additionally, he served as a peer advising leader and peer mentor for first-generation students.

Omukoko is the co-founder of the African Brotherhood, a campus community that supports students from various African countries and cultures as they transition to life at Oberlin—helping to make it their home away from home.

Omukoko's professional accomplishments are equally notable. He was named an Athens Democracy Fellow, a Newman Civic Fellow, an Impact Investment Fellow, and an Ashby Business Scholar. Last summer, he worked as an analyst at Morgan Stanley in New York City.

Omukoko earned a National Student Employment Association 2025 Student Employee of the Year Award for his compassionate peer mentoring and student employment work in the Center for Student Success. Other notable recognitions include the Senior Leader Award and membership in Omicron Delta Epsilon, the international honor society in economics, and Alpha Alpha Alpha, a national honor society for first-generation college students.

Looking ahead, Omukoko plans to explore opportunities in research and policymaking within the field of economic development. He hopes to contribute to sustainable, data-driven change in Kenya by applying rigorous analysis and innovative policy design to promote inclusive growth.

CANDIDATE FOR THE AWARD FOR DISTINGUISHED SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

Elizabeth "Liz" Burgess '73

Since her days as a college student in the 1970s, Liz Burgess has prioritized service to her community. Born in Troy, New York, Liz grew up in locales worldwide: Rensselaer, New York; Seoul, South Korea; and Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico. In 1969, she moved to Ohio to attend Oberlin, graduating in 1973 with a degree in psychology. She began a psychiatric social work and health care administration career at the W.G. Nord Community Mental Health Center. Years later, in 1989, she transitioned from social work to a career as an independent artist, working with textile techniques and sericulture.

In 1997, Liz and two other artists co-founded the Ginko Gallery & Studio in Oberlin, exhibiting and selling the work of local and regional artists. She became the sole proprietor in 2005, adding an art supply department and transforming the store into a vibrant base for various community activities. One of its most beloved features was the group of neonatal kittens Liz fostered in the back room—an ongoing attraction for college students and local families alike. She retired and closed the store in 2024.

Even as a student, Liz was involved in the larger community, organizing Lorain County’s first women’s hotline and domestic violence shelter. Over the years, she has served as a board member and president of organizations such as the Oberlin Consumers Cooperative (Co-op Bookstore), the Textile Art Alliance of the Cleveland Museum of Art, Main Street Oberlin, Community Action to Save Strays (CATSS), Kendal at Oberlin, and Kendal Northern Ohio.

Alongside her friend Krista Long, Liz co-founded the Bill Long Foundation, a public community foundation that supports projects and activities in Oberlin, and the Oberlin Community Land Trust, a nonprofit dedicated to creating opportunities for affordable homeownership. Liz continues to live in Oberlin with her husband, John A. Machnauer—and an ever-changing number of foster kittens.

HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENTS

Jennifer L. Morgan ’86, Honorary Doctor of Humanities

A leading historian whose groundbreaking work examines the intersections of gender and race in the early modern Black Atlantic, Jennifer Morgan earned one of the nation’s highest honors in 2024: a MacArthur Fellowship, commonly known as the “genius grant.” This year, she serves as an Andrew R. Mellon Fellow at the Cullman Center for Scholars and Writers at the New York Public Library.

A lifelong New Yorker, Jennifer is the Silver Family Professor of History in the Department of Social & Cultural Analysis and the Department of History at New York University and the author of several influential books. Reckoning with Slavery: Gender, Kinship, and Capitalism in the Early Black Atlantic (Duke University Press, 2011) won the Mary Nickliss Prize in Women’s History from the Organization of American Historians and the Frederick Douglass Prize awarded by the Gilder Lehrman Center for the Study of Slavery, Resistance, and Abolition at Yale University. Jennifer also wrote Laboring Women: Reproduction and Gender in New World Slavery (University of Pennsylvania Press, 2004) and co-edited Connexions: Histories of Race and Sex in America (University of Illinois Press, 2016).

Jennifer is now working on The Eve of Slavery, a project about slavery and freedom in the 17th century that centers around Elizabeth Key, a Black woman who successfully sued for her freedom in Virginia in 1656. In conjunction with that project, she served as executive producer for Key to Freedom, a narrative film project that was written and directed by Jennifer’s daughter, Zinha Morgan-Bennett.

As a student at Oberlin, Jennifer designed her own major in Third-World studies and went on to earn a PhD in history at Duke University. She credits her extraordinary scholarship and her MacArthur Fellowship to the late Adrienne Lash Jones, the first tenured Black woman in Oberlin’s Africana Studies (then Black Studies) Department.

Dr. Timothy M. Uyeki '81, Honorary Doctor of Science

Tim Uyeki is the chief medical officer in the Influenza Division at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). A leading global health expert, he has dedicated his career to studying, preventing, and controlling influenza and other infectious diseases worldwide. His work has been instrumental in shaping public health policies, responses, and treatment guidelines to emerging disease threats, including COVID-19, Ebola, H1N1, and, most recently, the H5N1 avian influenza outbreak in dairy cattle.

Since joining the CDC in 1998, Tim has been at the forefront of global health efforts. As a consultant to the World Health Organization (WHO), he contributed to international responses to zoonotic and pandemic influenza outbreaks, and his expertise has informed critical governmental decisions and public health initiatives aimed at protecting the most vulnerable populations. Most recently, he served as clinical chair for the WHO's 2024 influenza clinical practice guidelines, as chief medical officer for the CDC's response to the multi-state outbreak of H5N1 infections, and as a member of the National Institutes of Health's COVID-19 Treatment Guidelines Panel.

Tim's work on SARS in Vietnam was featured in the 2008 documentary The Virus Empire: Silent Killers and the 2006 WHO book SARS: How a Global Epidemic Was Stopped. His research on avian influenza in Vietnam and Indonesia was highlighted in CNN and NHK Japanese Public Television documentaries, as well as in books such as The Fatal Strain (Alan Sipress, 2009) and news articles like "The Flu Hunters" (New York Times Magazine, 2004). Tim also appeared in the Discovery Channel's Invisible Killers series and additional NHK programs on SARS and pandemic flu.

At Oberlin, Tim studied biology and environmental ecology and nurtured a lifelong love of the blues. He earned his medical degree at Case Western Reserve University, and later a Master of Public Health in epidemiology and a Master of Public Policy, both at the University of California, Berkeley.

Beyond his scientific contributions, Tim is a committed mentor and advocate for public health education. He is a clinical professor of pediatrics at the University of California, San Francisco, and he played a key role in developing Oberlin's global health concentration and its new global health major and minor. He also advises Oberlin students pursuing public health and medicine careers.

Sonia Shah '90, Honorary Doctor of Humanities and Commencement Speaker

An investigative journalist and critically acclaimed author, Sonia Shah has written prize-winning books on migration, disease, and human-animal connections. A persuasive writer and fierce skeptic, Sonia challenges our popular assumptions and long-held scientific beliefs about everything from the way we test the safety and effectiveness of new drugs to how we combat infectious disease. A throughline of her work is mythbusting, an extended argument that what we have been taught to believe about the world—and about each other—is often based on flawed logic, lousy science, or overtly racist beliefs.

But whether writing about microbes, migration, or pandemics, Sonia reinforces her arguments with rigorous research, making her one of the most trusted expert voices in modern science literature. For example, in her 2004 book, Crude: The Story of Oil, Sonia's eloquent argument for us to ditch "our oil-drenched society" and "chart a new energy future" has even greater resonance today: 2024 was the hottest year on the planet since record-keeping began in 1880.

Her other books include 2010's The Fever: How Malaria Has Ruled Humankind for 500,000 Years, long-listed for the Royal Society Winton Prize; 2016's Pandemic: Tracking Contagions from Cholera to Ebola and Beyond, a New York Times Book Review Editor's Choice and a finalist for the Los Angeles Times Book Prize in science/technology; and 2020's The Next Great Migration: The Beauty and Terror of Life on the Move, which was a finalist for the 2021 PEN/E.O Wilson Literary Science Writing Award and was selected as a best nonfiction book of 2020 by Publishers Weekly. Sonia received a 2023 Whiting Creative Nonfiction Grant for her forthcoming book, Special: The Rise and Fall of a Beastly Idea.

Sonia's bylines have appeared in the New York Times Magazine, the New Yorker, and the Nation. A popular public speaker and 2024 Guggenheim Fellow, she has lectured at universities and colleges nationwide, including Columbia's Earth Institute, MIT, Harvard, Yale, Brown, and Georgetown. She also gave a popular TED Talk, "3 reasons we still haven't gotten rid of malaria."

Sonia was born in New York City to Indian immigrants. Growing up, she shuttled between the northeastern United States, where her mother and father practiced medicine, and Mumbai and Bangalore, India, where her extended working-class family lived. "Shah makes clear that her interest in migration is personal," wrote Richard O. Prum, the W.R. Coe Professor of Ornithology at Yale University, in his New York Times review of The Next Great Migration. "The daughter of a couple who emigrated from India to New York, she writes that her parents' relocation 'instilled in me an acute feeling of being somehow out of place, one that's taken nearly five decades to quell.'"

Sonia has been an active and generous alum since earning her bachelor's degree in philosophy and neuroscience at Oberlin. She served as editor-in-chief of The Oberlin Review and participated in a career panel during the paper's 150th anniversary celebration. Sonia's son, Kush Bulmer, is also an Obie; he graduated in 2022.

CELEBRATING A MILESTONE

Carbon Neutral 2025

Oberlin prepares its graduates to change the world for good, and in 2025, we're proud to celebrate a milestone of meaningful change on our campus: we've achieved carbon neutrality!

This ambitious goal has been more than two decades in the making. It began in 2004 with a pledge of environmental stewardship by Oberlin's Board of Trustees. Two years later, Oberlin was an initial signatory on a national university climate commitment—a coalition that grew to include nearly 900 U.S. institutions. That commitment set us on a clear path: to achieve carbon neutrality by 2025.

This year, Oberlin completed a monumental step: activation of a new geothermal energy system that replaces our century-old fossil-fuel-based system. Installed between 2021 and 2024, the new system will save 5 million gallons of water annually and improve energy efficiency by 30 percent. It also pushes us across the finish line to carbon neutrality for the first time in our almost 200-year history.

Thank you for joining us in celebrating this momentous achievement—Oberlin's first commencement as a carbon-neutral campus.
